

Hoffman Process pre-course work

Welcome to your Hoffman Process pre-course work. You will be embarking on a journey of self-discovery during your Process week and this work is intended to help you understand and prepare for that week.

The work will take approximately 6-8 hours to complete and you may find it beneficial to take a few breaks and come back to it with fresh eyes. This form does NOT save automatically, so please save a copy of the document to your device BEFORE you start to work on it, and be sure to save it regularly as you go along. Making sure you are working on a saved version from the outset can help prevent wasted time and effort.

If you can keep to a paragraph or two with the most important details, that's ideal – quality of information is more important than quantity. The boxes on the form provide ample space for the length of answer we're expecting to receive. It will be read by your facilitator, and your answers will support them to support you, so we ask that you try to complete this in your own words, as honestly and openly as you feel able to and without assistance from AI.

1. Your name (first name, last name)

2. Your email address

3. Which Hoffman Process are you registered for? (starting date, month, year)

Your background

Our childhood background and experiences influence our behaviour and decision-making throughout our lives. In this section, we explore the impact of how our family dynamic still influences our lives today. You may find some memories easier to recall than others, and this is perfectly normal.

We recommend that you explore your past with an open mind and curiosity, which will assist you in understanding how the connections and links from your past may still impact your life today.

35. Name, age and occupation of your mother (former occupation if retired). Where did they grow up? Are they still alive? If not, when and how did they die?

36. Name, age and occupation of your father (former occupation if retired). Where did they grow up? Are they still alive? If not, when and how did they die?

37. Did your parents separate or divorce? If so, how old were you when this happened?

38. Do you have any surrogates? A surrogate parent is somebody who had a significant parental role, including raising you and disciplining you before the age of 13. A surrogate could be a step-parent, grandparent, nanny, boarding school etc). Please list name(s), and relationship to any surrogate(s) you had before the age of 13.

39. What country were you born in? Where did you spend the majority of your childhood? Did you move during the first 13 years of your life? If so, please give dates and brief details.

40. If you had siblings / half siblings or step siblings, please share their name and age, and if they were half or step siblings. Did you grow up together?

41. Were you adopted? Did you grow up with foster parents, or in care? If yes, please give details, including what age you were.

42. If you were adopted, have you met or had contact with your biological parents and, if so, when?

43. Did you go to boarding school and, if so, at what age? Briefly describe your experience.

Growing up

Assess your relationship with the following people, where 0 = poor and 10 = excellent.

87. How do you behave / react when faced with challenges now?

88. Who or what would you describe as your present support system?

Understanding patterns

You will have an opportunity to acknowledge the positive things you learned from your parents and surrogates later during your Process week. For now, we invite you to see your parents as human beings who, like all of us, knowingly or unknowingly will have made some mistakes.

The next section of this work identifies what we call 'patterns'. Patterns are negative behaviours, beliefs, thoughts, moods and actions that we repeat in our lives. Patterns are part of the human condition and we all have hundreds of them. They are negative, compulsive, automatic, emotionally charged and learned.

As children, up to the age of puberty, we take on the patterns of our primary caregivers in order to feel loved. We mould and shape our behaviour whether we realise it or not.

This is Bob Hoffman's theory of 'Negative Love' - even though we take on or adopt patterns in order to feel loved, we end up hurting ourselves and others.

The following examples may help to understand different types of patterns.

Behaviour patterns

Examples include: critical, being late, perfectionist, workaholic.

Patterns of belief

Examples include: 'We're better than them', 'I'll never be good enough', 'I'm not important', 'I don't care', 'I can't have what I want', 'I need to prove myself'.

Roles, personality traits

Examples include: joker, caretaker, rebel, good girl, peacemaker, overachiever.

Compulsive moods/feelings

Examples include: resentful, anxious, depressed, passive-aggressive.

Once we have identified our patterns, we can start freeing ourselves from them.

Identifying patterns

In the work that follows, you will see many examples of patterns.

Put an 'X' in the relevant column if you recognise the pattern in yourself (Me), Mother (M), Father (F) or Surrogates (S1 or S2).

Please note that this is not a complete list. You are welcome to use words of your own (e.g. from your native language) where there are blank boxes at the end of a block.

You may have identified surrogates above and we have included columns for up to two. Remember that a surrogate can be a person (e.g. step-parent) or an institution (e.g. boarding school).

Allow yourself to be guided by your intuition or gut feeling. If you and your parent(s) / surrogate(s) had the same behaviour, make sure you mark an X in the relevant columns.

It doesn't have to be perfect. You can go back to this list as often as you need.

If you are using surrogates, make a note of which will be S1 and S2 here (if applicable), and the relationship of each surrogate to you.

Your Patterns

The negative patterns that you learned from your parents and surrogates are the 'baggage' that is holding you back in your adult life and that you are coming to the Process to work on.

Remember that patterns are reactive, emotionally charged and compulsive. Some patterns may be so regular and so automatic that they seem to be part of our identity.

At this stage you may find it useful to re-watch the short animated video that you were sent with your pre-course work 'Explaining the Negative Love Syndrome'. There is also a section in Tim Laurence's book 'You Can Change Your Life' which goes into more detail (Chapter 2).

There are three ways that we take on our parents'/surrogates' patterns:

1. Adopt (I adopted the same pattern as my parent)

Example: 'Mum was critical of me and of herself, so I directly learned her pattern of being critical. I may criticise myself, criticise others, and unknowingly set up situations and people in my life where I end up being criticised.' Or 'Aggression was used by Dad at home, so I learned the pattern of being aggressive. In my life today I can be aggressive towards others and towards myself.'

2. Rebel (I took on the opposite pattern to my parent)

Example: 'My stepfather had incredibly high expectations of me, so I rebelled and took the opposite pattern of having low expectations. I have low expectations of myself and of life in general, which stops me having what I want'. Or 'Mum was controlling, so I became passive. As an adult I am too passive in my relationships.'

3. React (I took on a different pattern in reaction to my parents' pattern)

Example: 'Dad was a worrier, so I took on the pattern of being a joker, to try to soothe things. As an adult, I struggle to drop the joker mask and to be authentic with others'. Or, 'My Mum was cold and aloof, so I became a hypochondriac in order to get her attention. This still plays out for me as an adult.'

As you can see, just one pattern from a parent may lead to a whole cluster of adoption, rebellion or reaction patterns in you.

For example, a controlling father may mean that you learned patterns of control or passivity, staying small, anger, mistrust, etc. An emotionally unavailable mother may have led to your own patterns of emotional unavailability, abandonment, withdrawal, zoning out or smothering, codependence, neediness, etc.

Pattern Exploration: Present to Past

In this section we want you to demonstrate that you understand the connection between your present and your past.

Choose one of your own patterns that is causing damage in your life today and explore the connection to childhood.

As you reflect on the current issues you are facing in your life right now, identify a behaviour of yours that is a problem for you. (Example: 'I procrastinate at work and at home')

Name it as a single pattern (Example: 'Procrastination')

How does this play out? Do you do this to yourself, partner, colleagues, family, friends?
(Example: 'I do this to myself and it affects my partner, colleagues, family and friends')

Where did you witness this way of being or behaviour in your childhood? Did a parent do it to themselves, you, or someone else? Did a parent allow it in a sibling?

(Example: 'My mum would always leave things late, then panic')

Did you learn this in reaction/rebellion to a parent? If so, what did they do that created this behaviour in you?

(Example: 'My dad was very pushy, driven and inflexible. What I did was never good enough')

What was it like for you, as a child, for your parent to be that way? How did you feel?

(Example: 'I felt scared of getting things wrong. I froze whenever there was pressure. I never wanted to try new things')

Name the ways this pattern comes out in your life today. Do you do this to yourself? To others?

Do you set it up for others to do it to you? (Example: 'I never get anything finished. I'm scared when I'm asked to take on new projects at work and I beat myself up for it. I focus on little things and never get to the important things. My partner is pushy, like my dad, and I feel the same pressure')

What are the consequences? What damage is it causing in you and in your life? (Example: 'I want to give up before starting something new. It causes conflict with my partner. People are always waiting for me to make decisions, and sometimes make decisions without me because they get frustrated')

Name any other patterns you see as a result of this. (Example: 'Procrastination. Fear of failure. Inadequacy. Freezing under pressure. Beat myself up.')

Pattern Exploration: Past to Present

In this section we want you to demonstrate that you understand the connection between your past and your present.

Past to Present: Mother

Choose one pattern for your mother to explore what they did and how it is alive in your life today.

Think back to your childhood and write down one of your mother's negative ways of behaviour or being.
(Example: My mother didn't show emotion. She wouldn't tell anyone what she was feeling)

Name it as a pattern (Example: Shut down, isolated)

To whom did they do this? (themselves, partner, you or one of your family)
(Example: She did it to herself and she expected us all to do it as well)

What was it like for you, as a child, for your mother to be this way? What did you feel? (Example: I could tell she was angry but she denied it! It made me feel tense and nervous)

Name the ways this pattern is alive in your life today. Do you do this to yourself? To others?
Do you set it up for others to do it to you?

(Example: I married someone who invalidates my feelings. I don't know how to handle it when other people express their feelings to me. I don't share my feelings with people I care about)

What are the consequences? What is it doing to you now and what damage does it cause in your life today? (Example: I feel isolated and as if nobody really knows me. I never feel good enough. I try to be kind, but often feel angry with no healthy way of expressing it. I suffer from anxiety and high blood pressure)

Name any other patterns you see as a result of this (Examples: Isolating, Walking on eggshells, Shut down, My feelings don't matter, Lacking connection with others)

Pattern Exploration: Past to Present

In this section we want you to demonstrate that you understand the connection between your past and your present.

Past to Present: Father

Choose one pattern for your father to explore what they did and how it is alive in your life today.

Think back to your childhood and write down one of your father's negative ways of behaviour or being.
(Example: In social settings, my dad would always sit back and be more of an observer)

Name it as a pattern (Example: Withdrawn)

To whom did they do this? (themselves, partner, you or one of your family)

(Example: He did it to himself and all of us)

What was it like for you, as a child, for your father to be this way? What did you feel?

(Example: I felt embarrassed by him being so withdrawn, and the awkward things he might say)

Name the ways this pattern is alive in your life today. Do you do this to yourself? To others? Do you set it up for others to do it to you?

(Example: I find myself feeling awkward in social situations. Sometimes I blurt out things and feel stupid for saying them. Other times I will overshare or be very outgoing to over-compensate.)

What are the consequences? What is it doing to you now and what damage does it cause in your life today? (Example: I sometimes feel uncomfortable in new social settings. I find myself observing, rather than taking action. I become hard on myself and feel I'm not good enough)

Name any other patterns you see as a result of this (Examples: Withdraw, Overshare, Isolate)

Pattern Exploration: Past to Present

In this section we want you to demonstrate that you understand the connection between your past and your present.

Past to Present: Surrogate (if applicable)

Choose one pattern for a surrogate to explore what they did and how it is alive in your life today.

Think back to your childhood and write down one of your surrogate's negative ways of behaviour or being. (Example: My stepmother was very judgemental and often unkind about people)

Name it as a pattern (Example: Hypercritical)

To whom did they do this? (themselves, partner, you or one of your family)

(Example: She was quick to criticise anyone, but especially people who didn't agree with her)

What was it like for you, as a child, for your surrogate to be this way? What did you feel?

(Example: It made me feel nervous and unsure of myself. I would do things just to keep her happy)

Name the ways this pattern is alive in your life today. Do you do this to yourself? To others? Do you set it up for others to do it to you?

(Example: I find myself people-pleasing and letting other people make decisions for me, just to keep the peace. I worry about how others perceive me, and second-guess my choices)

What are the consequences? What is it doing to you now and what damage does it cause in your life today? (Example: I hold back from making big decisions because I'm fearful of 'getting things wrong' in the eyes of others. I'm more passive than I'd like to be. I lack resilience, and will immediately back down if challenged. I'm scared to 'make a fuss'. I lack confidence)

Name any other patterns you see as a result of this (Examples: People-pleasing, Passivity, Don't use my voice, Self-invalidation, Keep the peace at any cost)

Patterns I learned in my childhood

On your Process, we will work with each of your parents and surrogates individually.

To prepare for this, we ask you to look back at the work you did earlier in the tick-box section of this form (pages 22-46) and compile a list of your worst patterns that you adopted from / did in reaction to / did in rebellion to each of them.

These patterns will be the focus of your work at the start of your Process, so choose patterns that you feel have had the most negative impact on your life.

My 10 worst patterns from my Mother. You are welcome to include more.
(Please also note whether you have adopted, rebelled or adapted to her patterns).

Summary

89. As a result of these explorations, what have you seen about the impact of your childhood on your adult life? You might want to consider this in relation to the following areas: your love life, parenting, friendships, work / career / money, health / body image, race / ethnicity, sexuality /sensuality.

90. Please describe any other insights you have learnt about your childhood/family.

91. Write down how you would like your life to be if you could have it just the way you wanted.
Be specific about the changes you want for yourself.

92. Do you have any questions/concerns about participating in the Hoffman Process?

93. Did you use AI whilst completing your pre-coursework? If so, please tell us something about this

94. Is there anything about completing this pre-course work that you would like to give us feedback on? Was anything unclear? Were there any passages that concerned or disturbed you?

95. Who are you doing the Hoffman Process for?

96. Do you feel ready to throw yourself wholeheartedly into the Hoffman Process? (YES/NO)

Finally

Your pre-course work should be returned to the Hoffman Institute at least four weeks before the start of your course (unless otherwise agreed), as this gives time for us to read your work.

We will contact you if we have any questions based on what you've written. Please be assured your information will be kept confidential.

When you have completed this form, please email it along with a clear, recent photograph of yourself (unless you have already sent one) to enrolment@hoffmaninstitute.co.uk

Please remember to print out pages 22-57 and bring them with you to the Process, as you will be referring to this section of the pre-course work during the week.

Thank you!
